VARGAS HONORS RANDA TRAPP AS 2004 WOMAN OF THE YEAR

Sacramento, CA- Assemblymember Juan Vargas recognized the leadership and achievements of Superior Court Judge Randa Trapp at the California State Assembly "Woman of the Year" Ceremony. The event took place on Monday, March 22, 2004 in the State Capitol Building in Sacramento. Joining Vargas was 16 of Mrs. Trapp's supporters, including her family, friends and community residents who applauded her many successes.

"Today, I recognize The Honorable Randa Trapp for her outstanding accomplishments and triumphs," said Vargas. "Her consistent hard work and dedication inspires and elevates us all. I am proud to have the honor of presenting her as the 79th Assembly District's Woman of the Year."

The Honorable Randa Trapp, a native San Diegan, is a Professor of Law at the University of San Diego School of Law. Governor Gray Davis appointed Trapp to the San Diego County Superior Court in 2003. Prior to her appointment, Trapp represented Sempra Energy and many of its subsidiaries in all aspects of complicated commercial transactions. In 2001, she was honored by the San Diego City Council proclaiming October 15, 2001, "Randa Trapp Day." Judge Trapp is married to Larry Trapp, a San Diego County Deputy Sheriff, and is the mother of two sons, Langston and Lawrence.
